A SILLY CANARD.

THE TRUE STORY.

A sensational speech is going the rounds of the press, to the effect that Colonel Lawrence Orton Williams, who was supposed to have been executed as a Confederate spy, at Franklin, Tennessee, in 1863, escaped, and was now a General in the C.

The above sensational special we find in the Louisville Courier Journal of yesterday. Colonel Williams was executed at Franklin, Tennessee, in 1863. We were present and witnessed the execution. Captain Alexander, of the Seventh Kentucky cavalry, was the Provost Marshal who officiated. Colonel Williams and his

We saw him hanged, coffined and buried, and if he was smuggled away by friends it was only as a lifeless body. Life was extinct when he was buried, and we have a suspicion that the man is yet dead. As an officer on the staff of General Watkins, the classmate of Williams at West Point, who detected him in our camp, we were detailed to see that the verdict of the courtmartial was properly executed by the Provost Marshal, and we did not leave the ground until the earth was heaped on the bodies of both men. We

It is a positive falsehood so far as Williams being alive is concerned, and will only serve to open afresh in the hearts of his relatives the wounds of a wound that has been surely healing. There is an unwounded and outrageous cruelty. Colonel Williams was a brave man and met death fearlessly. Not a muscle of his face quivered, his eagle eye did not dim its fire an instant as the fatal blow was a just adieu to his neck. On the contrary, his last words exhorted his companion to be courageous, and the last pressure of his hand was one of sympathy.

and reassurance. We all hoped to see a gallant a gentleman die an incontinent death, but it was beyond our power to avert his fate. He died, for dead he is not unipited and unmoored by generous friends.

Butler and Schenck.
From the New York Tribune.

We are permitted to publish the following pungent paragraph from a private letter lately written by Gen. B. F. Butler to "The New York World" declares that Gen. Bon. Butler has given out repeatedly that he is going to fight Gen. Schenck and the Commission on War and Means for the tion the made California, Oregon, or Washington Territories, yet you do not understand it to be my duty to reply to it. Reflect a moment! Suppose I should so to answer all the newspaper slanders that have been published about me, what time should I have for any reputable employment? I trust I have grander subjects for contemplation in the condition of the country and the remedy for its financial and political troubles than fighting Ge. Schenck or any committee upon the question of why they went to California, Oregon, or Washington, or elsewhere.

think it very foolish for them to have gone. That is their affair, not mine. But the men who write these paragraphs only know what they would do if they were in my place, and are not to be blamed for judging me by themselves. Such a contest or fight would fully fill the measure and scope of their abilities and their thoughts; and they of course think it fit

James M. Mason, for a long time one of the United States Senators from Virginia and the representative of the Confederate States to the Court at St. James, is now a resident of Seminary Hill, and accordingly drives into town in an ordinary top-spring wagon, with a black body, a black seat and a black harness, and a man who wears a black suit but with broad bands, a blacked-over cloth as a coat, gray breeches, stockings of which a single in a note of heavy hose, and blacking, a gentleman. Mrs. Abe Lincoln.
The wife of a prominent Philanthropist

We have passed many happy, happy hours together. The first night we spent in Frankfort, we sat talking all night long and the bright day dawned in at the window of her chamber, a desolate room. Not having seen her since I met her in sick room, after Mr Lincoln's death, course the meeting was over come by. For a while, tears and sobs such as never with soul, her anguish her 1729. A few nights since, as the night express on the New York Central road was near Amsterdam, a baby, who was looking out of an open window, fell from the train, and came down to the ground. The frightened mother, without a thought of danger, rushed to the door and leaped from the train. As soon as possible the case was stopped, and looked into the ground. Every one expected to learn of the fatal injury of both mother and child. But strange to say, neither was hurt, except that the baby had a slight bruise on the side of the head. The mother asked to see the child, and looked out of the window, her only thought was that she "wanted the baby."

THE BRUIERS.

See Attention to the Right.
From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Rumors are being extensively circulated, not only in Cincinnati but in St. Louis, that the fight between Allen and McClellan for $5,000 and the championship of America, set for November 10, which fifty miles of this city, will not come off. Upon what foundation these rumors are based we are unable to say, but we are satisfied that both men are in earnest and mean business, and if anything should occur to prevent their meeting in the ring, it would be a great loss to the public.

McClellan went out to the Albany, a few days out of St. Louis, about six weeks ago, and has been working very hard. When he came back to the city, he was met in good condition. He had undergone his usual training, and at the time supposed he would have a walk over. In less than fifteen minutes after he had stepped, he found himself a badly whipped man.

McClellan says his object in his last fight was to show the world that he was a good fighter, and that he was not a "punch-drunk" as he was called. He says he was not a "punch-drunk" as he was called. He says he was not a "punch-drunk" as he was called. He says he was not a "punch-drunk" as he was called.

A DEFENSE OF THE GRANTS.

The President and the Gold Ring.
From the New York Times.

Undisputed by previous discomfited, the organs of the gold ring have renewed their attempts to identify the President with the recent transactions of the Gold and Gold. From one infamy they have descended to another. To sustain their position they have published what purports to be a letter, or an extract from a letter, addressed by Mrs. Grant to Mr. Conlin, in which General Grant is represented as "very much annoyed at Corbin's speculations." The "letter" is not to be influenced by them, but bears his name.

Of the appropriation of a lady's private letter—supposed to be genuine—upon the purpose of causing a scandal, the men who have been guilty of this, are not likely to be scrupulous in the choice of means for the attainment of their ends. They who laid traps at street corners that they might be seen speaking to the President, would not hesitate to peruse a private letter if its possession were necessary for their purpose.

But we brand the letter and the extract from the letter as forgeries. No such letter as that which the gold ring gave to the public yesterday was ever written by Mrs. Grant. Not a line ever proceeded from that lady, or from the President, in any manner recognizing or directing gold or any other speculation. Any letter which is alleged to have been written by either, of the nature of that which has been published, is a base and wicked fraud. It is a forgery, and one in perfect keeping with other measures resorted to by the gold ring.

Whether Mr. Corbin has at any time pretended to be in receipt of special advice in regard to his speculations, from the President or from Mrs. Grant, we cannot undertake to say. He is evidently a weak man, and has played a very foolish part. In one way or another, he has been associated with the Erie gang, and has been an instrument in their hands. For that he has been used for the purpose of the gold ring, and for the purpose of the gold ring, and for the purpose of the gold ring.

AYER'S
Hair Vigor,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effective for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color and freshness of youth. Thin hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of falling the hair with a ready settlement, it will grow clean and vigorous. Its use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling out, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING.

Nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy luster and a grateful perfume.
